

Jodie Sartor Solow, B.S., M.A., CPLP

Senior Consultant, Learning and Organizational Development

Jodie Solow has over 20 years experience in training, management development and organizational development in financial services and healthcare organizations. Jodie has been a senior consultant in the Learning and Organizational Development (L&OD) Department since 2007. Jodie has a dual role at UNC Health Care. In her L&OD role, Jodie provides cultural change initiative support, organizational development consulting, and leadership coaching. Jodie is the program manager for the Operational Leader Academy and helps with the administration of the Employee Opinion Survey. In her other role, Jodie is the HR Director for Chatham Hospital. Jodie earned a Master of Arts Degree in Education from Peabody College of Vanderbilt University and Bachelor of Science in Psychology from Tulane University. She is qualified to administer the Myers Briggs Type Indicator (MBTI) and is a certified Targeted Selection Facilitator and Administrator. She is a member of the American Society for Training and Development (ASTD). Jodie has earned ASTD's designation as a Certified Professional in Learning and Performance™ (CPLP).